- A translation of Emma et Maleeka by MiaQc

Emma is a simple woman. She likes to drink coffee on her way to work. She wears clothes that are too big for her because she loves to be comfortable. Her medium-length blonde hair is styled simply. Her brown eyes and rosy cheeks are never maked up. She wears glasses, which she thinks are cool.

When Emma meets a mysterious woman named Maleeka at the beach, they fall in love with each other. They go out together every day and Emma feels like she's in heaven. But one day she discovers her lover's dark secret. Not only is the raven-haired woman not human, she is a mermaid but a cannibalistic one! This explained her violet eyes and strangely pale skin. As pale as Snow White.

Emma then wonders whether Maleeka really loves her or whether she wanted to lure her into her trap to eat her.

“Emma, dear Emma, of course I love you!”

“But you're a cannibal mermaid! So you must eat people!”

“Yes, people I seduced and then drowned, but I didn't love them.”

“So can you prove to me that you really love me?”

“Of course. Meet me at the beach later.”

When Emma finds Maleeka at the beach, she is in the water. Emma joins her and sees her scales, her mermaid tail, and that she’s bleeding from her tail.

“Here,” said her lover, handing her a piece of flesh, “this is proof that I love you. If you eat it, you will gain eternal youth like me.”

“Yuck, that’s disgusting!”

Fortunately for Emma and Maleeka, the beach is deserted.

“But who would refuse eternal youth?” Maleeka asks Emma. “Not aging...”

“You're not wrong.”

Emma, despite the fact that she wants to vomit, eats the piece of flesh from the cannibal mermaid. They are then united for life.
